TRAVELING TOWARD PEACE

Frequently Asked Questions

Q What is the Traveling Toward Peace Program?

A Traveling Toward Peace is a curriculum that combines classroom sessions, that use a multicultural approach to teach peacemaking, with a peace play that provides an opportunity to share the skills and knowledge gained during the classroom sessions.

Q What is the plot of the Peace Play, “The Peace Adventure: A Play about a Peace Seeker’s Progress”?

A “The Peace Adventure” is the story of a Peace Seeker who learns lessons about making peace by traveling with friends to different cultures. The story explores concepts such as communication, cooperation and connection. Cultural sages met during the journey share their peace-related wisdom, and the Peace Seeker returns to the conflict situation that inspired the journey, and, with new knowledge and skills, changes the outcome. The play ends with the Peace Seeker ready to embark on another journey toward peace.

Q What ages does the Traveling Toward Peace Program serve?

A The basic classroom sessions (based on the Culture Camp World Tour Curriculum) are most suitable for children ages 5 through 12, though younger and older children have enjoyed the program. “The Peace Adventure” play can also be an intergenerational project, with adults and children working together to produce and perform the play.

Q How flexible is the Traveling Toward Peace Program?

A The Traveling Toward Peace program can be used in many ways and over many different time frames: After-School Programs during an entire academic year; Summer or Holiday Camps (integrated into a long term project or as a part of a dedicated Culture Camp) and Special Events (performances at peace festivals and multicultural fairs).

Q What makes the Traveling Toward Peace Program fun and easy to implement?

A Both kids and adults love to play “make believe”. The loosely structured script provides plenty of opportunities to ad lib and customize the lines given in the script. The organization can add its own discussion sessions, book groups, or home-based activities. The curriculum is self-contained, and comes with checklists and timelines and suggestions for props and costumes for the peace play.

Thanks for your interest in our “Traveling Toward Peace” program and for this opportunity to partner with you in “teaching peace thru play”.
